Valley Hospital is 15 years old The impossible success story

LIVERMORE — It rates as one of this Valley's better success stories. The amazing thing is that it ever got off the ground.

The happy climax to that campaign came in 1961, with the opening of a 46-bed hospital that charged $24 a day for a room.

Valley Memorial Hospital staff and supporters had a busy history to look back on when they celebrated their 15th anniversary Friday with a party in the cafeteria.

Now, VMH's bed capacity has more than doubled. And its rates have gone up fivefold — like those of all Bay Area hospitals.

There's a third story on the hospital now, another addition being planned and a second hospital to be built in Pleasanton. VMH enterprises also include the Family Medical Center of San Ramon, completed in 1974, and the Pleasanton Laboratory, which opened six months later.

The idea of building a community hospital was born in 1955, when the Livermore "20-30 Club," a service group, took up the project.

In order to avoid creation of a tax district to finance the undertaking, local ranchers and other big taxpayers launched a drive to build the hospital through voluntary contributions, with matching government Hill-Burton funds. Members of the first Pleasanton-Murray Township Hospital Survey Committee included Alan J. Anderson, Judge Joseph Schenone, Hollis Bascom, Dr. B.O. Burch, Mrs. Louise Clausnitzer, Mrs. Olga Callier, Dr. John B. Copeland, John B. Edmands, Henry Erlich, Dr. E.C. Hawkins, Mrs. Maxine Hector, Rev. Richard Johns, Dr. H.J. Shanks, William A. Struthers Jr., Peter C. Wright and Dr. Henry Trowbridge.

Anderson, Bascom, Judge Schenone, Karl Wente and Mrs. Dagmar Fulton undertook the formation of a nonprofit corporation.

For a $100 donation, a local resident could become a voting member of that association. Many families contributed far more to the effort, and Henry J. Kaiser donated the property on East Stanley Boulevard, valued at $50,000.

First board members were Hollis Bascom, Stirling Colgate, Robert Becker, Lee Hollingsworth, Arnold Abrott, Mrs. Fulton, Karl Wente, Judge William Gale and Edwin Burr.

Frank F. Morin was the first administrator. Originally, there were 117 Auxiliary members (now there are more than 400), and the thrift show now operated in a building on hospital grounds was originally located at 2073 Third St.

Just before the hospital opened for business on Oct. 3, 1961, some 5,000 people streamed through the new facility, admiring the gleaming lobby, the two-bed rooms, the cheerful nursery and antiseptic surgical suite.

The Valley population at the time was 30,000 — just a fraction of what it is today.

A contemporary newspaper account describes the brand-new VMH this way: "The feeling one gets is not that of entering a cold, impersonal hospital. Rather, it is more the feel of entering a hotel or motel where the customer's comfort has been given top priority. This hospital has been designed to provide the patient with every aid to help make his stay as pleasant as possible."

Herlihy explains vote on 'right to privacy'

PLEASANTON — A public official's right to privacy is important and that's why Councilman William Herlihy voted against the conflict of interest policy approved 4-1 by the city council last week.

A state law, authorized by Proposition 9's passage in 1974, requires public officials to abstain from voting in matters involving the financial gain of spouses or children.

The council took it a step further and forbade members to vote on items enriching relatives to the first degree, namely first cousins, aunts and uncles, in-laws and siblings.

Herlihy told The Times Friday that "you elect people to certain positions because of their honesty. You can't legislate against moral activities."

Herlihy felt the local ordinance is not needed because voting is "up to the conscience of the individual."

"I feel the same way about the state law," said Herlihy. "I voted against Proposition 9. It's an invasion of one's privacy. You have to identify everyone in the family when you vote. Proposition 9 has added a barrelful of red tape and they have had to hire more people to handle the paperwork in Sacramento."

A few months ago Councilman Ken Mercer refused to vote on a rezoning involving a gas station because his brother-in-law owns a gas station in the city. Herlihy cited that abstention, which went beyond the requirements of the state law, as an example of "honesty and integrity in council people." The law is not needed, said Herlihy, because it is "up to the conscience of the individual."

He wants a new poll

PLEASANTON — A new poll ought to be conducted to learn public sentiment about the Las Positas overcrossing, but only residents in the neighborhoods closest to it should be allowed to vote, believes Val Vista resident Cyril Kirkland.

The recent newspaper poll found that the most popular of six alternatives was a two-lane vehicular overcrossing with pedestrian and bike lanes costing an estimated $1.6 million.

But in Kirkland's estimation, people across town who voted for that alternative won't have to put up with extra traffic in their neighborhood, the way he will. He lives on Brooks

Court, and his back yard abuts a grassy area which would become the entry way to the overcrossing.

Kirkland favors construction of a pedestrian overcrossing at $400,000, something which he says would solve the problem of students walking through the sewer pipes under I-680 to get to Foothill High School.

"The vehicle overcrossing isn't needed," said Kirkland. "If the Stoneridge Regional Center is built, we'll get a Stoneridge overcrossing. If the center isn't built, we won't need a Stoneridge overcrossing."

"The only reason for putting vehicles on the Las Positas overcrossing would be to get high school students to school in their vehicles. But if they have a car, they don't need an overcrossing, they can drive around."

Kirkland felt the newspaper poll had several bias factors which operated in favor of those who voted for the front-running alternative.

Council 'open forum'

PLEASANTON — The city council will conduct the second in a series of neighborhood meetings at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the multipurpose room of Valley View School, 480 Adams Way.

Mayor Robert Philcox will handle the introductions and Councilman Frank Brandes will talk about streets, Vice-Mayor Joyce LeClaire will discourse on planned residential development, Councilman Ken Mercer parks and recreation, and Councilman William Herlihy will speak about planned commercial development.

A period of questions and answers will follow.

They helped raise first $1 Million

Raising money to build Valley Memorial was a two-year-long struggle that brought many segments of the community together. Here, women who were later to be the nucleus of the Auxiliary make Christmas decorations to sell to raise funds. Seated, Dorothy Watson, Marcella Dailey, Carrie Haas, Olga Frudden; standing, Ida DePietro, Luella Nilsson, Cecile Cope, Louise Clausnitzer.

Del Valle road is questioned as 'answer'

PLEASANTON — A frontage road proposed along part of Del Valle Parkway would create more problems than it would solve, according to Assistant City Manager Alan Campbell.

Morrison Homes reportedly has suggested a frontage road along the course of the future Del Valle Parkway along 22 acres it will be developing east of Hopyard Road.

The CARD Committee has endorsed the idea, believing it would prevent construction of homes on a four-lane parkway that's bound to be a heavy traffic carrier.

CARD Committee official Wally Mayer compared the future Del Valle Parkway situation to Santa Rita Road when explaining his group's endorsement. Homes in the Jensen Tract would have fronted on Santa Rita Road if the developer had not installed the frontage road next to Santa Rita Road, said Mayer.

Campbell has not seen Morrison's new proposal for the frontage road, but he feels there is "no question that frontage roads create problems."

"They are not an ideal solution and problems occur, especially at the intersections. There have been some accidents at the one on Santa Rita Road," said Campbell.

The assistant city manager thinks that the potential traffic problems for the future parkway route "have been greatly exaggerated."

The city has planned the Del Valle Parkway for a low speed limit and no trucks. Even if the parkway took half the traffic coming off Hopyard Road, it would amount to nowhere near the volume of traffic which uses Santa Rita Road, said Campbell.

"There would be about as much traffic as Black Avenue carries now," said Campbell. "Taking the Black Avenue traffic equivalent and putting it on a four-lane divided road, you will get something quite different."

City invites fire station No. 4 bids

LIVERMORE — Contract specifications for Fire Station No. 4 have been received from the printers and city hall officials say they are prepared to issue them to contractors interested in bidding on the new station.

The station, to be located on Conannon Blvd. and Cordoba St., was designed by architect Randy Schlientz of Associated Professions of Livermore.

Interested contractors, following the approximately 270 page document, must return bids by Oct. 19, according to City Clerk Dorothy Hock.

Announce Monday Murray eyes major change

Murray School District board president Ted Woy will make a major announcement regarding personnel at Monday night's Murray board meeting.

Since the Murray Teachers Association has declared an impasse in negotiations, the announcement does not deal with negotiations but with a member of the administration. It will come in the wake of a closed personnel session last Monday.

Monday's meeting will be held at Donlon School, 4150 Dorman Rd. in Pleasanton, starting at 8 p.m.

The gathering is slated to deal with several crucial issues, including an update on the call for a mediator from the Educational Employment Relations Board (EERB), presentation of the Citizens' Advisory Committee report recommending conversion of Dublin School to seventh-eighth grade use, a shousing and staffing report, and information on declining enrollment policies of other districts.

A housing and staffing report to be reviewed by trustees shows the district had enrolled 5,197 students as of last Wednesday.

Individual school enrollments are as follows: Donlon (K-8), 1,260; Wells (7-8), 753; Lydixsen (K-6), 742; Nielsen (K-8), 548; Dublin (K-8), 472; Frederiksen (K-6), 430; Murray (K-6), 347; Cronin (K-6), 290; Fallon (K-6), 280.

Under staffing, the district shows 269 9/10 full-time equivalent staff members and 4 1/2 full-time equivalent aides. The figure for this time last year was 275 and 8/15 full-time equivalent and 3 aides.

The above figures include everybody from Superintendent Donald Williams to counselors, speech clinicians, specialists, teachers and aides.

The only gain in full-time equivalent teachers is at Wells, from 35% FTE last year to 37.

The housing and staffing report will also include a lengthy section on the program at Donlon School.

A student-teacher ratio survey taken by MSD compares schools in nine districts, including Harvest Park in Pleasanton. Lowest ratio is that of A.B. Morris School in Castro Valley, one teacher to every 17 students, and the highest is Los Cerritos in the San Ramon district, one to every 25. Harvest Park is 1-23.3.

Board members will also review Title IX policy, discuss possible alternatives for the now-defunct News and Views informational bulletin, and act on various certificated and classified personnel issues.

Teacher rep, Supt. debate

PLEASANTON — Superintendent Bruce Newlin of the Pleasanton Joint School District and Tom Zach, president of the Amador Valley Teachers Association, will discuss and debate SB 160 and issues directly related to negotiations on Monday, Oct. 11.

The unique public discussion is presently scheduled for the district media center at Pleasanton School. Time has not been pinned down though Zach said Friday it would probably be late afternoon or evening.

Newlin said he was prepared to debate and/or discuss all facets of the collective bargaining bill and local teacher issues. Zach indicated the program might be broken into two parts, the first half devoted to statements on SB 160 and the second half to statements and/or a debate on the local issues.

Zach said they might ask a member of the League of Women Voters to serve as moderator.

It is also possible the meeting might be videotaped for future review by teachers, other staff members and the media.

The request by Zach for such a discussion-debate grew out of last week's AVTA general membership meeting at the Pleasanton Hotel.

Gravel tax may be 'impossible'

PLEASANTON — It may not be possible to charge a tonnage tax on valley gravel extractors to assure compliance with a reclamation plan for the gravel pits, but this city ought to get deeply involved with the reclamation plan itself.

That was the opinion of two council members who have taken leadership on the gravel pit reclamation issue, William Herlihy, who represents the city on the Valley Sand and Gravel Committee, and Mayor Robert Philcox, who recently wrote to the committee about the city's need to give input on the reclamation plan.

Herlihy told The Times Friday that Supervisorial candidate Valerie Raymond's idea to charge a tax of 50 cents or $1 on each truck leaving a valley gravel pit has been discussed in the past.

"To my understanding, the county has no legal mechanism to do it," said Herlihy. "I would favor it, if they could find a mechanism. It's one way to accomplish the goal of completing the reclamation plan at a minimum cost to the gravel companies."

Philcox said that Herlihy suggested a similar tax at an earlier council meeting once and it would be an interesting proposal to examine, though he has no idea about how much revenue it would generate, if it could be adopted.

Looking ahead to a joint meeting with the Livermore City Council over matters pertaining to the local gravel industry and its reclamation plan, Philcox said that the city "should be involved; we're the guys who have to live with it."

"The gravel industry has a right to be here but it also has an obligation to fulfill," said Philcox. "Reclamation is part of that obligation. There must be mitigation of any of the adverse impacts on communities and the valley. It's an obligation and as long as they fulfill it, we're happy."

How they fulfill it and how we think they do fulfill it should be discussed. Through candid and open comments, we can determine what's best. We haven't taken an active part in the past. Now we're talking about the reclamation plan and our input is important," said Philcox.

"... A great portion of the 3,800 acres to be reclaimed would be a chain of lakes south of Stanley Boulevard, a potential vast water recreational area for the East Bay, if taxpayers agree to develop it.

The chain of lakes also could have serious implications for the water table in Pleasanton, which is the highest underground water level in the valley.

The lakes could act as an underground recharge for the water table and if underground water levels rose high enough, there could be worries about flooding in residential areas which once overflowed when they were farmlands.

Herlihy said that if the underground recharge were a consideration in the reclamation plan, Zone 7 ought to be called in for consultation. "We should get Zone 7's input on how they see their role on management of the water after the pits are depleted," said Herlihy.

Zone 7 has been increasing its imported water from the state aqueduct each year and with less water being taken out of the underground each year there is a greater danger of an artesian well condition developing in Pleasanton lowlands, some believe.

Entertainment, art demonstrations and food concessions will move indoors in the event of rain either day — 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Burglars take $1,450 cash from Players Lounge

DUBLIN — Burglars lowered themselves through the roof of the Players Lounge at 7459 Amador Valley Blvd. early Thursday and took a case of bourbon and approximately $1,450 cash, deputies said yesterday.

According to reports, suspects kicked out a vent screen on the roof, got into the attic and punched a hole in the wall to enter the bar. They lowered themselves to the ground by rope, deputies said.

Once inside, burglars pried open a plywood cabinet containing cash register funds of $550. A box containing the past three days' receipts of $900 was also damaged and its contents missing. The suspects then left through the back door.

Manager Francis Newell told deputies he closed the bar at 2 a.m., and reopened it at 6 a.m., at which point he discovered the burglary. A safe inside had been tampered with but not entered, deputies said.

Newell said $1,450 in cash and a case of bourbon were taken during the burglary. Sheriff's deputies have no suspects in the case.

Suspected prowler arrested on Santa Rita Road

PLEASANTON — A man suspected of prowling outside a Tanager Drive home late Wednesday was arrested by police and "positively identified" by the victim, police reported.

According to police, reports of a prowler brought two patrol units and a police dog to a Tanager Drive residence about 9 p.m. Wednesday. Officers combed the area and patrolman Mak Redeker found a suspect fitting the description at Santa Rita Road and Mohr Avenue.

The suspect was returned to the victim's house after officer Jay Graves found a footprint made with a "Vibran" type sole in mud in the backyard. The suspect had similar soles that were muddy, police said.

The suspect told police he had ridden his bicycle from Dublin to Century House, and had walked into town. He would give police no further information.

The suspect's picture will be placed in a photo line-up of suspects wanted for two prior prowling incidents, on Sept. 14 and again on Sept. 18. Both were near the site of the latest complaint, and a suspect on a bicycle was followed from Pleasanton to Dublin before eluding detainment in the Sept. 18 case, police said.

The footprint was lifted, and several dirt samples were taken from different areas of the backyard for comparison with mud in the suspect's sole.

The suspect was booked at Santa Rita Jail, and his bicycle impounded following the arrest. The district attorney has not issued any charges in the case, it announced Friday.

Woman injures toe in gun accident

LIVERMORE — A Frankfurt Way resident was injured when the gun she was holding fell and discharged into her foot, police said.

Mattie Corene Williams told police she was checking to see if her .25-caliber automatic pistol was still in its hiding place when the telephone rang. She carried the holstered gun into the kitchen when it slipped out and hit the ground, discharging upon impact. A bullet pierced her slipper and struck the fourth toe of her left foot, police said.

Williams, a nurse, was treated at Valley Memorial Hospital and released.

$600 damage to house under construction

LIVERMORE — Vandalism broke pipes and stole wood from a Bluebell Drive home under construction, police said Friday.

Vito Pavia told police that five 1/2-inch copper pipes were broken, and an aluminum furnace had been forced down into its base. Damage was estimated at $600.

Vandals also stole 10 lengths of wood valued at $130. There are no suspects in the case.

Sheriff's motorcycle patrol cites 11 persons

PLEASANTON — The sheriff's department says its two-man weekend off-road motorcycle patrol was successful during its first outing.

Six persons were cited for riding off-road on unauthorized lands. Five others were cited for driving without off-road permits, drivers' licenses or equipment problems.

In addition, six illegal bikers were chased out of Bonita Park, and one shotgun was confiscated.

The weekend patrol consists of two uniformed sheriff's deputies riding their own motorcycles on off-road unincorporated areas to check for trespassers.

Public hearings set

State spurs water re-use

SACRAMENTO — Increased use of reclaimed water offers a partial solution to the state's steadily rising water demand according to a draft policy and action plan for wastewater reclamation issued by the State Water Resources Control Board.

The policy and action plan, set for public hearings in Sacramento and Los Angeles in October, was developed to guide the board in implementing its legislative mandate to "encourage development of water reclamation facilities so that reclaimed water may ... help meet the growing water requirements of the state."

Some 1.7 million acre-feet could have been reclaimed had the facilities and market been available, according to the SWRCB. By the year 2000, an estimated 3.2 million acre-feet of wastewater will be reclaimable.

About 80 per cent of this represents a new water supply which could be used to free freshwater supplies for other uses, including instream recreation and maintenance of fish and wildlife habitats.

Using reclaimed water also would delay the time when additional north coast rivers would have to be dammed to provide additional supplies to meet the state's growing demand.

There currently are at least 194 wastewater reclamation and reclamation projects statewide. They reclaimed an estimated 187,000 acre-feet of wastewater in 1975, primarily for use by agriculture and for landscape, irrigation and groundwater recharge.

The draft policy includes proposed changes in the SWRCB's regulations for administration of its grant and water rights programs.

Through the grant program, the board, using state and federal monies, funds up to 87 1/2 per cent of construction costs for municipal wastewater treatment facilities to provide secondary treatment. In selected cases, the proposed regulations would allow the board to fund facilities providing additional treatment to produce reclaimed water suitable for use by industry and agriculture, for groundwater recharge and other designated uses.

Valley voters this November will decide on ballot measure that proposes to take treated wastewater effluent and pump it through the Dublin Canyon to a "super sewer" line being built by the East Bay Dischargers Authority. State and federal funding will be used.

The EBDA project will collect treated wastewater from local communities and pump it to an outfall line in San Francisco Bay.

Proposed changes for water rights regulations would protect those who conserve freshwater by using reclaimed water.

"The term 'freshwater' is misleading," according to SWRCB member Jean Auer. "Much of the water now used in the state already is being used."

"After it is used once and discharged back into a stream or river, it is taken out again by someone further downstream to be reused again. In fact, in the Santa Ana River Basin in San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties, it is reused from three to five times."

The valley's treated waste water currently is dumped into the Alameda Creek where it eventually winds up in the Fremont-Newark underground water supply. It was that dumping that prompted the state board to order the valley's municipalities to form the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) and to stop pumping treated effluent into the creek.

The state board's task force which developed the policy and action plan was composed of representatives from the nine Regional Water Quality Control Boards (RWQCB), the State Departments of Water Resources, Health, Fish and Game, and Food and Agriculture, the Environmental Protection Agency, Bureau of Reclamation, Corps of Engineers, League of Women Voters, Sierra Club, U. C. Davis, American Waterworks Association, Association of California Water Agencies, WATERCARE, California Association of Sanitary Agencies and individual water districts and consulting firms.

Hearings are set for 10 a.m., Oct. 20, in the auditorium of the State Resources Building, 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento, and 10 a.m., Oct. 18, in room 1138 of the State Building, 107 So. Broadway, Los Angeles.

Copies of the policy and action plan can be obtained from the office of planning and research, State Water Resources Control Board, P.O. Box 100, Sacramento, CA 95801.

Senior citizen gold card plan winning support

A standardized senior citizen's gold card discount program initiated by Valley Community Services District is gaining support from local organizations in the Livermore-Amador Valley.

During a meeting Monday, COVA and chambers of commerce from Dublin and Pleasanton agreed to be in charge of the program once VCSD furnishes them with an initial list and other vital information. The City of Pleasanton and Livermore Senior Service Center will also be cooperating. Livermore Chamber of Commerce representatives said they would have to check with their board members before giving final approval.

After collaborating agencies and organizations receive necessary information they will dispense cards, keep lists updated and do whatever else is necessary to insure the program's success.

It is hoped the program will be in operation by the end of November.

Persons 55 years and older will be eligible for a gold card. Anyone may join after proving their age. A driver's license, insurance policy, birth certificate, Medicare card or similar official record will be accepted as proof.

The nationally recognized program is aimed at helping people who live on a fixed income. There are 23 other communities in the Bay Area already offering this service. Some local merchants give discounts now but VCSD wants to standardize the operation.

Merchant participation is voluntary and they have the right to decide what kind and how much of a discount they will offer.

Basically, the discount program is a plan to find merchants, organizations and services who are willing to offer senior citizens savings or special privileges that help supplement their income.

"Individual interest in the program is great among the elderly in our particular area," said Adele Ostomel. She is the program services coordinator for Alameda County Social Services Agency, Department on Aging.

"We've had excellent information made available through the efforts of Harry Henry," Ostomel continued.

Henry is a one-man crusade for the plan and has been trying for years to get such a program standardized throughout the East Bay area. Henry is retired and does his work for gold cards on a volunteer basis.

Tests show Livermore students above average

LIVERMORE — College-bound Livermore students are doing better, on the average, than other California students and considerably better than the average college prep student in the nation.

That's the story told by the latest Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores, according to Dick Jenkins, Livermore Unified School District pupil services director.

Granada High students scored slightly higher in both verbal and math than Livermore High students; but the two schools' average scores were considerably higher than the regional averages.

"This is a further indication that there's something going on in those classrooms," Jenkins said of the results.

The test results are for 272 students who took it last year. Here is the breakdown of scores on a scale of 200-800:

VERBAL: Granada, 480; Livermore, 463; district average, 472. California state schools' average, 430; Western states' average, 433; national average, 431.

MATH: Granada, 525; Livermore, 521; district average, 523. California average, 470; western states, 475; national, 472.

According to Jenkins, the results cannot be attributed to high IQ's among students, since, he says, "We have a very average school population, IQ-wise."

Generally, however, "only top-level students take the tests," he added, "since they're the ones who are going on to college."

Booklet provides tips for young asthmatics

A rambunctious four-year-old named Sammy and his family will guide young asthmatics through a lesson on how to cope with their frightening illness.

Sammy is a character created by cartoonist Morrie "Wee Pals" Turner of Oakland, especially for the children in Solano and Contra Costa Counties. He's the star of a book, "Happiness is Breathing Better," offered to residents of that county, free, as a Christmas Seal service of the Lung Association. Anyone desiring a copy may contact the association at 105 Astrid Drive, Pleasant Hill, CA 94523.

A large group of medical and health service professionals served as advisors to the project. The book tells how to control an asthmatic's environment, suggests exercises and activities, describes breathing classes, medical care and treatment, and suggests family behavior and interaction.

SR cancer victor hits tobacco

SAN RAMON — When they wheeled Audrey Huseman out of the John Muir Hospital operating room, after three and a half hours of lung surgery, the doctors were optimistic.

"Audrey," they said, "don't smoke another cigarette and you'll be safe."

It had never occurred to Mrs. Huseman, who lives at 1 May Court, to disease.

Her son, then 13, was one one who advised her to get the chest X-ray which saved her life. She hadn't suspected a thing — had never experienced the hoarseness and cough that can warn of lung cancer.

Her narrow brush with death, caused by what she sees now as a thoughtless habit, inspired Mrs. Huseman to stop smoking. But she had just had a cancerous growth, the size of a quarter, removed from her right lung.

She knew that only one in 20 lung cancer patients escapes death. She missed her comforting habit of 20 years. But she gave up cigarettes.

That was nine years ago. "It's just a whole new life!" she reports today, after fully recovering from her deadly share her experiences with Times readers. Here are excerpts from "The Last Cigarette," a true story:

I look back now to the night of July 20, 1967, and remember how it was when I took the last cigarette I was ever to smoke.

It was no different than the hundreds and thousands of cigarettes I had smoked for 20 years. Did I once dream it was to be my last one? Heavens, perish the thought.

Give up my cigarettes? Never! So I thought then. I was what is termed an addict.

Morning, noon and through the night my cigarettes were as much a part of me as my breathing. I look back now and wonder how it was possible that such a small, innocent looking cigarette could have had complete control of my very senses.

My husband, my two boys and my friends eternally nagged me, saying that smoking was bad for my health. I really wanted to cut down, but I certainly did not want to give them up completely. How would life go on without my cigarettes?

Who had the right to expect me to give up a thing that was part of my very life? No one had that right as far as I was concerned.

Let me try to remember (it seems a thousand years ago now) what it was that made me start smoking. I wanted living whether it was good, bad or indifferent.

I remember so clearly the first cigarette. I was deathly ill and could not even hold up my head. I was dizzy and sick to my stomach.

I thought I just hadn't mastered the art. I just didn't think there was that much to it. How foolish!

My boy friend did not smoke and he was most unhappy that I had even tried. What motivates a person to do what everyone else seems to enjoy and do with such ease?

There must be within each of us an inner force to follow through and do the thing that seems so important to do. Cigarette smoking and its pleasures were important to me. Even when I was still not sure I'd ever smoke and not get sick that was not me.

There was that part within me that was not the kind to give up and say, "Well, I tried."

Lung cancer is the most deadly of all cancers. The cure rate is only 5 per cent — one in 20 — because it is not detectable until it is too far advanced for successful treatment.

Maybe I didn't listen to my 13-year-old son about not smoking but I did listen to him about getting a chest X-ray at a mobile unit. This is what saved my life!

I had two months, a mere 60 days to go before I was past the point of no return. Still, my cigarettes were the crutch I needed so badly at this critical time. Smoke I did and I still could not imagine giving up my cigarettes.

I can't tell what possessed me to feel that I would still be smoking after they got me better — if they could. I wonder now if it's the depths of an unspeakable nothingness that was a great factor in my not smoking...

So from one who has traveled that long, hard, difficult road of lung cancer: I beg you DON'T START. There are no rewards in the end, no victory flag waving, no one to say I told you so.

Only what is there is the cold hard fact that you had a choice.

Pleasanton poet finds success

PLEASANTON — The first time around in Pleasanton, John Mathias was taunted as a long-haired freak, but a few months ago they welcomed him with open arms as a person who went off to the big city and returned to share some of his sensitive poetry with local high school students.

Mathias, who was born in Paris, spent his junior and senior years at Amador High School, and then went off to a variety of experiences: study of zazen for a summer from a Japanese Zen monk, a degree in ceramics at California College of Arts and Crafts, publication of his book of poetry called, "god bless poetry," and the start of two businesses, one in printing, the other in ceramics, both in Oakland.

John's parents, Don and

Judy Phinney, still live in Pleasanton, so it's not as though he totally cut himself off from his roots. He'll be returning here again in November for two big events, one a benefit poetry reading at the Cultural Arts Center November 3 and on the following weekend his annual Christmas ceramics sale at his parents' home on Ridgewood Road.

His visit to Amador High School, at the request of teacher Wendy Herzog, was a nice experience for him and something of a reversal.

Five years ago when he was an Amador student, poetry had a hostile reception among students. Mathias feels that the stuffy old way of teaching it — memorize this Shakespeare passage, here's what this quaint language means, that kind of stuff — turned off students.

Mathias is more of a poetry performer and that helps the lines come alive. He has quite a stage manner, he says, and he also gives introductions to his poems. It's a big help if the student can understand what the poet is about, to learn that a poem is just a figment of the poet's imagination, an expression of his or her feelings, he believes. "The students wanted to see what a poet looks like," said Mathias. "They asked me questions like could I make a living from being a poet (no) and where was I coming from. They still have the same problems as when I was here, namely boredom, for example. They learned about places in San Francisco and Berkeley where poetry (readings) are going on."

"Five years ago I couldn't even have been in the school to read my poetry. There was no desire among the students and the teachers didn't want the interruption. Last June I read to all of the English classes, two at a time, to about 60 students each time.

"Each class went different. Some were quiet, some into asking questions, some seemed stunned and didn't go any further," said Mathias. His reading November 3 will feature some material from his book published by Blind Dog Press in Oakland. But most will be other work and he will put the emphasis on performance. Half the proceeds from the $1.50 admission charge will go for the city recreation departments' ceramics fund.

Prop. 13 to create jobs?

The question of how to meet many of California's pressing financial problems without a tax increase is the major overriding issue surrounding Proposition 13, George G. Hardie, author of the greyhound initiative, charged recently.

Hardie said passage of the initiative to legalize parimutuel wagering on greyhounds could encourage the legislature to slash millions of dollars from the state's operating budget, would create 10,000 new jobs and provide new construction over the next two years amounting to more than $100 million.

Hardie told a rally of Proposition 13 supporters that "it's time for us to begin accentuating the positive and spread the word about the benefits accruing to every Californian without increasing taxes a single dime."

The 42-year old spokesman for the Golden State Greyhound Association, which hopes to build a new industry comparable to that existing in 12 other states, said friends of greyhound racing should "arm themselves with all the facts, and especially those relating to the vicious multi-million dollar campaign of the horse racing people to defeat Proposition 13, and their highly unethical use of public officials and tax dollars to protect their private enterprise, profit-making monopoly."

"If Prop. 13 had been written and authored by the horse racing people instead of me, there wouldn't be a shred of opposition to it," Hardie said. "Even the public officials who talk against it, and the newspapers which have editorially opposed Prop. 13, agree that it's just a question of whether George Hardie ought to be in the act."

"My years of experience with greyhounds, together with my 12 years as a harness horse owner, driver and trainer, make me as qualified as any one I know to play a major role in the development of a viable, productive greyhound industry in California," Hardie concluded.

Mori to head money meeting

Assemblyman S. Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton), seeking to retain his 15th District seat in November's election, will chair the Assembly Subcommittee on Employment and Economic Development in San Francisco Oct. 4 and 5.

It will be the first in a series of interim hearings which will examine ways to increase the economic development of the private sector.

"California's economic recovery has lagged behind the rest of the nation and over 900,000 Californians are out of work," Mori said. "This is unacceptable."

Mori said the state's economy must create 200,000 new jobs every year over the next several years just employ new entrants in the labor market. "We must explore new concepts to provide meaningful job opportunities in California," he said.

The subcommittee will review the state's past economic development efforts, study development programs in other major states, and hear testimony regarding the state's future economic prospects and what policies and programs the state should develop in this area.

Invited to the hearing is Don Burns, the governor's economic development advisor, who will testify on the economic development plans of the administration.

"Small business employs 50 per cent of the work force in California," Mori said, "and historically, has been considered the cornerstone of our free enterprise economy. It is important to strengthen the viability of small business in California."

Mills has candidate night Oct. 7

An informal "meet your candidate" reception will be held at Castlewood Country Club, 7-10 p.m. Oct. 7 for Jim Mills, Republican candidate opposing incumbent Rep. Pete Stark for the 9th Congressional seat.

Mills, 40, who made national headlines last year when he voluntarily brought 110 Vietnamese refugees out of Saigon just before the Communist takeover, is dedicated to putting a halt to what he calls "galloping government." He has charged Stark with breaking his promises to 9th District residents by consistently voting for bigger government and more taxes.

The evening at Castlewood will be free to the public, offering hors d'oeuvres and a no-host bar. It will give the public a chance to meet Mills face to face, discuss issues, and learn his views on reducing government and taxes, making it more efficient, and how to improve Congressional productivity.

Mills has recently opened campaign headquarters at 7027 Dublin Blvd., Dublin, and has other offices at 510 B St. in Hayward.

"the shame of Watergate should not be rewarded by re-electing the candidate of the party responsible for this most shameful episode in the 200-year history of our country."

Other reasons given were the "unbelievably inhumane vetoes of this Nixon-appointed president of basic legislation to deal with the problems of the unemployed, the poverty stricken and the sick and elderly citizens of this nation," and the Democratic platform that "will help achieve a prosperous, progressive America," the union said.

It endorsed Sen. John V. Tunney for re-election to the U.S. Senate, saying his record is in "favor of programs to correct the problems of both inflation and unemployment." The union called his opponent, Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, a "senile eccentric" whose only "claim to fame is the fact that he wears a tam-o-shanter and was strong enough to pull the plug in a loudspeaker in the 1960's."

Park district directors endorse Proposition 2

East Bay Regional Park District Directors have endorsed Proposition 2, the State Urban and Coastal Park Bond Act of 1976 which would bring more than $6 million to Alameda and Contra Costa Counties.

The act authorizes acquisition of valuable coastal resources and also acquisition and development of other state and local parklands and recreational facilities. Of the $280 million total, $85 million would be allocated to local governments.

"Based on East Bay populations in relation to the overall California population, a total of $6,321,771 would come to the East Bay, $4,024,736 to Alameda County and $2,297,035 to Contra Costa County," EBRPD General Manager Richard C. Trudeau told the board.

He emphasized that special districts are eligible to share in funds going to the counties, and the funds also are applicable to leased land.

The measure is sponsored by Senator John A. Nejedly (R-Walnut Creek) and Assemblyman Gary K. Hart (D-Santa Barbara).

"It is appropriate that we endorse the 'finished product,' since the district testified in its support at legislative hearings and the board gave official backing to both the Nejedly and Hart bills as they progressed through the state legislature," Trudeau said.

Stark gets CFA nod

Consumer Federation of America, the nation's largest consumer organization, today announced its endorsement of Rep. Pete Stark for re-election to Congress from the 9th District. CFA Executive Director Carol Tucker Foreman stated, "Despite tremendous pressures from a variety of anti-consumer forces, including the Ford administration, and intensive, well-financed industry and trade association lobbying efforts, Representative Stark has consistently and courageously voted in the best interests of consumers." Stark has supported consumers on every one of the issues selected by CFA in compiling its voting records for the 94th Congress. CFA's basis for endorsement is its voting records for the 94th Congress. These cover 24 key consumer votes, including the creation of an agency for consumer protection.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth D. Lee of Livermore hosted a reception and dinner recently for Mr. and Mrs. Duncan M. Lee on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The senior Lee's were married Sept. 18, 1926 at Fresno, Calif.

A retired executive of the Borden Milk Co., where he was automotive superintendent of the firm's western division, the senior Lee's were feted at a reception held at the junior Lee's Jiliana Avenue residence.

Notes of congratulations were received from friends and relatives throughout California and Oregon, including the junior Mrs. Lee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Colby Bradshaw, a retired University of Hawaii staff member and presently a city official in Oregon.

The Duncan Lee's were saluted at a dinner at Livermore Station, also attended by grandchildren Lorinda Joyce Lee, known to her intimates as Lori, David W. Lee and Stephen Lee. David is active in Livermore athletics, though presently recuperating from a recent soccer contest injury.

Stephen is a budding co-designer of a recreational facility in the fashionable Granada Woods area.

The junior Lee's are long-time residents of Livermore where he is employed as an environmental test specialist at Lawrence Livermore Lab's Site 300.

Valley Volunteer Bureau

New show is a birthday present

By JEAN McKENNA

How would you like to celebrate your first birthday as the star of a new show?

The Valley Volunteer did just that on the anniversary of its opening Oct. 1, 1975. The bureau is the colorful focus of a new slide show produced by media expert Clarence Johansen of Dublin. The show's premiere audience was the Civitan Club of Pleasanton which met over breakfast Friday morning.

The slide show dramatizes the role of the Valley Volunteer Bureau in answering human needs with human resources. Emotional impact is achieved by contrasting dramatic black - and - white slides of needs in the community with beautiful, light-filled slides of volunteers fulfilling those needs.

The lined, expressionless face of a lonely convalescent home resident rivets the attention in black - and - white film. The patient's delight at the arrival of a volunteer visitor is almost tangible in the bright color slide that follows. A black-and-white slide depicts the cracked plaster and general disrepair of the bureau's office before volunteers stepped in with paint brushes and tools. The present Volunteer Bureau headquarters — with new paint, curtains, files, phones and smiling staff—is shown in color.

It comes as no surprise that the latest chapter in the continuing success story of the Valley Volunteer Bureau was written with volunteer manpower.

Clarence Johansen spent a Saturday taking the black - and - white photographs at a Livermore convalescent home, while Charles Stallings photographed the scene in color film. Physics International of San Leandro (Clarence's employer) donated the film, and Bill Jordan of San Ramon spent hours translating negatives into beautiful slides.

Clarence has years of experience handling public relations, advertising, media relations and publishing for Physics International. He is also an avid photography buff, with a darkroom set up in his garage. The Volunteer Bureau is just one of a long list of non-profit organizations to benefit from his photographic skills and generous heart — a list that includes the Pop Warner football league and Pleasanton's swim team.

The former Chabot College English instructor picked up the editing pen for the narrative that accompanies the slide show, as well as for a printed brochure explaining the Valley Volunteer Bureau.

Why does he do it? "The work is there for someone to do, and I enjoy exercising my skills in a variety of ways," Clarence explains. His professional quality contribution to the Volunteer Bureau was, of course, gratis. "I just signed a card at the bureau, as every volunteer does, and they asked me to help."

Clarence found his experience taking photographs at the Livermore convalescent home to be "very moving." His wife Sue, who contributed a few ideas of her own to the project, also found the sight of lonely, old people "tragic."

It was while working at that same convalescent home as a volunteer that Betty Stallings first realized the great need for more volunteers and determined to establish a volunteer bureau in the valley to spread the word. Betty's friends, Dublin's Sue and Clarence Johansen put a professional hand to a new slide presentation starring the Valley Volunteer Bureau — an answer to human needs throughout the community.

lifestyle

the Johansens, were inevitably caught up in the project, too.

"Her enthusiasm for the Volunteer Bureau was really contagious," remembers Sue Johansen.

Betty became the bureau's director and carried it through its first year on a shoestring budget while attempting to find more permanent funding. Through her efforts, and those of the Volunteer Bureau's board of directors, $800 in donations was collected from local clubs, $2,000 from the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club, $500 from the East Bay Community Foundation, $200 in private donations.

Another $1,000 is expected from a benefit luncheon at the Neighborhood Boutique at Shannon Center in Dublin next month.

These funds sustain the Volunteer Bureau, cover monthly office rental, expense of two telephones and supplies, and recently pay Betty Stallings a half-time salary as bureau director.

The bureau has continued to meet expanding demands for its service from non-profit agencies throughout the valley, channeling hundreds of capable volunteers into a countless variety of community service positions — at schools, rehabilitation centers, nursing homes, clinics, crisis centers, parks.

Last June the bureau became the recipient of its first long-term grant — $2,800 from the East Bay Community Foundation which is contingent on matching funds from the valley on a two to one basis. The bureau accepted the challenge to raise $5,600 in funds to match the grant over a 14-month period.

"We're taking a chance, since we don't have the money to see us through the end of the year," admits Director Stallings. "We trust that the community will show its appreciation for the things already accomplished by the bureau and offer financial support."

It is at this point that the new slide show becomes a valuable tool for acquainting the community with the work of the Valley Volunteer Bureau. The presentation will greatly assist the bureau in recruiting volunteers for community service, in fund - raising, and in demonstrating to non-profit agencies ways in which they might benefit from a valley - wide volunteer bureau.

For every $400 donated or pledged to the Valley Volunteer Bureau, $200 in additional funds is received from the East Bay Community Fund. The $600 is roughly equivalent to a month's operating budget for the bureau.

In the meantime, the bureau has applied for more permanent funding through the Bank of America Foundation, valley churches and United Way.

Club or organizations interested in learning more about the Valley Volunteer Bureau may arrange to see the slide presentation by calling the bureau at 462-3570. The newly - released presentation has already been reserved for eight engagements, Betty reports.

The bureau continues to use volunteers for all of its endeavors and welcomes assistance of any kind from residents of the community such as Clarence and Sue Johansen of Dublin.

Mills Square - new touch, old idea

Even the major regional retail centers are boasting of their "cozy shopping atmosphere ... something much more than a store."

It is no secret that the big, busy and often bland shopping hubs of 21st Century promise are already having second thoughts. The consumer, God bless her, wants a little charm with her Charmin, some pizzazz with the potatoes.

The experts who plan our modern retail centers are hep to this mood, and their latest designs look more like an update on the old Mom and Pop Store, than something borrowed from Mars.

So maybe the merchants of Mill Square in Livermore are not so "far out" after all. Their dream of a downtown mall, of reduced vehicular traffic and enhanced pedestrian flow is as old as the first Roman markets, and as bold as next year's regional center. Closer to home, we can recall Pleasanton's talk of "turning Main Street into a Mall," accompanied by a lot of "old fashioned nonsense" such as covered sidewalks, planter boxes, and heavy use of red brick and redwood. Some of the newest and brightest "regional centers" appear to be latching onto that same mood.

It is a strange, sad truism of American "progress" that we must always go too far in one direction before we find the wisdom to go back again in search of those same values. This was evident in our turn-of-the-century rush into the cities, quickly followed by a mighty exodus out of the urban crunch and into suburbia.

We abandoned the "inner city mess" only to find we had to bulldoze our way back into those core areas ... losing a great deal of charm and disrupting a great number of "human values" in the process.

We should have the good sense to avoid that same traumatic experience in suburbia. We have the opportunity to function in a smaller arena ... to work directly with local property owners and sensitive store managers ... to capture the "best of the old" while it still has strong economic value for the future.

Some Pleasantonites saw that possibility two decades ago, and the results are evident in a healthy Main Street that has yet encountered no bulldozer, leaned on no massive "federal redevelopment." (As observed here Friday, we hope a new generation of Pleasanton leaders has the good sense to protect and advance that same "Old Town Charm.")

Now a group of tenants and landowners embraced by "Mill Square in Livermore" see similar opportunity for that town's century old core.

It is an exciting challenge worthy of community-wide interest. It is also the smartest, cheapest and happiest way to preserve our suburban cities for something more than wayside commercial stops along the developer's trail.

Still a nice, light touch

The week in retrospect

Fair facility eyed

Horse training operations at the Alameda County Fairgrounds will come under scrutiny Tuesday when members of the Fair Association's racing committee gather.

Various facets of the facility have been criticized from time to time by horsemen. But more importantly, the operation has become much more costly in recent years.

When we speak of the training facility, the stables are included along with the track.

It is doubtful the race committee would recommend any cutback in operations, though it remains a possibility. The Pleasanton facility has been known throughout the west for decades and still remains one of the prime training facilities in the Western United States.

But the recent County Fair season, which saw Service Employees International Union members elect not to work the track, has served to spotlight a problem that would have surfaced anyway in the near future.

Charged with looking into the operation and reporting back to the full board are George McDermott, chairman, and Dee Wilson, Dale Carithers, Richard McCarthy, Clark Redeker, Joe Perez and Al Bonne.

It is not known if the sub-panel will have concluded their deliberations in time to report at this month's fair board meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 12.

The site of the present-day Alameda County Fairgrounds was used for training horses as early as 1859.

In the mid-1870s Agustín Bernal, owner of the property, built a stable facility which became known far and wide for its ideal layout and year-round climatic conditions.

The property was purchased by a Canadian Railroad tycoon by the name of MacDonald in the year 1900. He constructed a large house (the present museum building), many horse barns and improved the race track, so that by 1905 the Pleasanton race track was known throughout North America as one of the finest winter horse training plants in the nation.

Because of the fine soil, excellent drainage, moderate climate, and ready accessibility of good hay and grain grown locally, Pleasanton became the favorite winter training quarters for many trotting and pacing horse owners from the Eastern United States and Canada.

The first fair on the present Fairgrounds in Pleasanton was started in 1912, and ran through 1916.

A group of men sold stock, constructed buildings on the private land, including a grandstand, and operated the Fair.

The first fair in 1939 was only of four days duration with the pari-mutuel handle totaling $19,985. By 1975, the daily pari-mutuel handle averaged close to a million dollars a day!

But the horse training facility has come a long way in other areas besides the money taken in at pari-mutuel windows.

And with it have come attendant problems—all related to either costs, upkeep or relations between horsemen and the management.

A meeting of the race committee to study the facility doesn't come too soon—to say the least.

It is also possible the panel will look at greyhound racing in light of the greyhound racing initiative on the Nov. 2 ballot. But have no fear, the august gentlemen of the Fair Association Board of Directors have no thoughts about turning any portion of the facility over to the dogs.

Not by any stretch of the imagination.

Street artists

Editor, The Times:

We hate to see the family-oriented town of Pleasanton being used by "street-artists" during Pleasanton Daze as a place to sell coke spoons (for snuffing cocaine) and "stash boxes" for marijuana (complete with a display of "roach clips" and hand-rolled cigarettes). We wonder if there is any type of screening process before these "merchants" are allowed to set up shop.

We enjoy the handmade crafts, the dolls and pottery, the paintings and macramé. The kids like the puppets and to do some early Christmas shopping for Mom and Dad. The hayride reminds you that Pleasanton is a town where the simple things in life are still appreciated. But the sweetness of the day leaves a slightly bitter taste when the "Big City" atmosphere starts creeping in with drug paraphernalia sold on the sidewalk.

This letter isn't meant as a cry to arms for the town vigilantes or as a threat to the organizers to "clean up their act"; it's just a written sigh ...

Bob and Linda Houts

sary, desirable or even feasible, the money must go to those purposes even though the Legislature might find greater needs elsewhere. And, by creating these new programs it could well be creating new burdens for the taxpayers. For once such programs get started the greyhound revenues may prove insufficient and pressures brought to bear for additional taxes to augment them.

To a large extent the other provisions generally are patterned after existing laws governing horse racing. But there are significant differences not the least of which is the state's share of the take. That is limited to 6 per cent whereas the state takes up to 8 per cent off the top on horse betting. Also, while local governments impose admission and other taxes on horse tracks, the greyhound promoters have prohibited such levies on them. So the cities may get stuck with heavy additional costs for traffic regulation and other police and fire services in connection with the dog tracks with no way to pay except socking it to the property owners.

In adopting the horse race law prohibition against board members participating in ownership or profits connected with greyhound racing, the same prohibition for board employees has been overlooked.

The proposal might have been far more palatable had it simply authorized greyhound pari-mutuel wagering and left the details of regulation and allocation of revenues to the Legislature.

Round the town

Americans are drinking more these days, but their bender has a sophisticated flavor.

We have this from no less an authority than the vintners of California. They package their brew in thin-necked bottles, serve it in thin-stemmed glasses. Get reviews in such as Sunset Magazine. Hence the claim to sophisticated imbibery.

It is the Madison Avenue answer to alcoholism. Nobody loves a drunk. Not even the people who make the stuff. Or so they say. Distillers run ads in the better class mags, urging us go guzzle with gentility. Preferably with a lovely damsel at our side, draped in mink.

The beer people avoid any such upper-crust identity for their product. Hardy types gang 'aft to sea ... or building the Alaskan pipeline ... or resting easy - la - Ben Davidson with his needle point. All suggesting that we are a nation in pursuit of a change of pace ... whilst we also pursue our favorite brew.

The wine folk would slip somewhere in between. Something more than a truck driver's gusto. Something less than a Scotch and water after the opera. Not that Americans above the Carter median don't prefer wine. It's just that they're in the minority, on the national scale of wine consumption.

College kids, struggling young moms and pops. They're the really big wine drinkers, I am informed. Not exactly connoisseurs of Concannon's best. More of the Italian Swiss Colony - by-the-quarter, set.

"Vintners of the top wines need those producers of the cheaper varieties, just to get young people interested in drinking wine," an expert in the field once informed me. Some of the X-brand is "little more than sugared water, with a pink tinge." But that's what a college freshman (or freshgirl) wants. For the big bash. On a small budget.

I can remember my own introduction to wine. I had gone through some two decades of life without any acquaintance with the stuff ... other than the childhood memory of a taste (awful!) gained from the sacramental host.

It was not until my salad years in the newspaper business that I saw wine served up as a main course. By the gallon.

It was in Tulelake, the land of potatoes and port. The field hands (let's face it, most of them were illegal wetbacks) worked hard by day gathering in the pomme de terre. And then in the evening, or maybe sooner for the thirsty, they would plunk themselves down on the curb close by the little grocery store on the corner of Modoc Street, and polish off the whole blessed quart.

I had never seen any beverage, from whatever source, consumed with such gusto. Had the Madison Avenue boys been able to gain a few endorsements from them potato pickers, wine today might be the nation's leading liquid.

As it is, wine is doing very well, thank you. White wine is the current front runner, we are advised. The fashionable refresher in homes, restaurants and even bars. Have you hosted a cocktail party lately? Positively amazing how many of your guests request "Just a glass of white wine, please." Some of 'em down the stuff like it was Seven Up.

In my Tule days we would label 'em "Wino's," relegated to the curbsides of life. Today they drink in the very best places. Four fingers of white wine in long-stemmed glasses.

"It is no longer fashionable to drink a lot, very fast, and get smashed." That's the latest word on guzzling. Today we take it slow and easy. Wrapping finger food and political facts around each glassful.

The more enlightened convalescent centers serve wine to their oldsters. Spruces up the appetite. Bolsters the spirits. Even leads to thoughts of sex, or so I am told.

I can recall my own dear Mother's fondness for "a small glass of port before dinner." It was her only vice. When she was finally confined to hospital, in her 84th year, it was up to one of her sons to sneak in that daily tot of red wine. Usually we snuck in two, to keep her company. Those were some of the happiest cocktail hours in memory.

The demand for white wine is getting ahead of the supply, it is reported. And, since it takes a vine up to five years to produce, it will be a while before the vineyards of Livermore Valley and less known points can close the gap.

We are confronted with a crisis in sauvignon blanc. I would suggest you run right out and buy a case or two. Against that day when important company stops by.

"Just a glass of white wine, please." Would be terribly embarrassing if all you had on hand was Scotch.

Car wash 'heritage'

Editor, The Times:

I am writing this letter in response to your September 29, article entitled "Car wash wins over 'heritage'."

Mr. Mercer says that he has a problem understanding "what is the heritage downtown." Mr. Mercer should take a drive through the business district of Hayward, Dublin or San Leandro, where they also don't understand, and where the local populations have to live in the eyesores that have resulted from this lack of understanding.

If the Pleasanton City Fathers allow construction of a car wash on West Angela, it will be opening the door to a lot of other things that may want to move next door to it: fast food places, tire shops. Who will want to open an office or business next to a car wash? And how will the City Fathers justify turning them down after letting a car wash go in?

It would be more appropriate, and more "understanding," to zone the development of fast food outlets and car washes to a satellite area on the outer sections of town, thus preserving the integrity of the city center, and also still preserving tax revenues.

We already have a number of eyesores; we don't need to add more. Let's have enough pride in our town to show up at the next City Council meeting and let Mayor Philcox know what we citizens of Pleasanton want — a well-planned city.

Letters to the Times

Good reporting

Editor, The Times:

I wish to thank ... The Times for the "super" article about myself and the Crisis Service at V.M. Hospital which was published Sunday 9/26/76.

In particular I wish to commend your reporter, Arline Butterfield who did, in my opinion, an outstanding job of putting together in a news readable manner an article from scattered and dinure information.

She was courteous and appropriately personable; constantly meticulous that material be presented in such a way as to enhance the Crisis Service.

All feedback I have received has been extremely favorable. Many expressed appreciation for a clearer understanding of what the service has to offer.

Murphy staff

Editor, The Times:

An open letter to Walter Wood, Valley Campaign Chairman for John Murphy.

I would be less than honest if I were not to say that I was both grateful and humored having read your open letter printed 29 September 1976. It gave more food for thought than you may have intended.

Walt, as I do not personally know you, I have no reason to believe that you were not telling the truth in saying that you were a volunteer for J.D. Murphy. The illusion is the inference that all on J.D.'s staff are volunteers. This most certainly has not been the case.

As it was published in the local media, you surely ought to know that your camp has "benefited" from the efforts of hired help. To be more specific, both Joyce LeClaire and Richard Wood have received salaries for managerial function on J.D.'s campaign staff. Whether or not Jane Benoit and others are or have been paid for services rendered, I do not presently know.

EARL WATERS

Prop. 13

Shaping into one of the more heated campaigns over November ballot propositions is the dog racing initiative designated Prop. 13. At least it appears that more money will be spent pro and con on this than all the other 14 proposals combined. This because the backers look to make millions from dog racing while the horse race tracks, and maybe Nevada casinos, see it as siphoning betting money away from the bangtails and the crap tables. To the bystander it wouldn't seem to matter how gamblers lose their money or to whom.

There is probably nothing wrong with dog racing per se. The purists profess it to be more honest than horse racing since, running without jockeys, the human element for interference with the abilities of the dogs is removed.

In any case, as the law stands, greyhound racing is not now barred. Actually, the inhumane treatment of animals feared by the opponents, such as using live rabbits for lures in training and racing and the destruction of inept or old dogs, is not now outlawed but would be specifically banned by the passage of the initiative. So the real issue is whether Californians want to extend gambling by authorizing pari-mutuel wagering at dog tracks.

The objections advanced are based on contentions that it will lead to corruption of officials and create serious crime problems. The sponsors rebut by pointing out this has not happened in the nine states which permit greyhound wagering or with horse racing in California. To this point then the anti-arguments have all the earmarks of red herrings rather than valid objections. They would have done better sticking to debating the provisions in the initiative.

The basic fault of Prop. 13 is that it writes into concrete, beyond the power of the Legislature to alter, all the details of regulation and the manner in which the revenues to the state will be spent.

In their efforts to lure voter approval the promoters have honey-coated the proposal with revenue allocations to attract the support of all the dog-gooders. Thus, funds are assigned irrevocably to a variety of presently non-existent funds for such things as high school athletics and other educational programs, child development, handicapped children, deaf children, child diseases, juvenile delinquency, foster care, heart and cancer research, senior citizens nutrition and transportation, and even retirement for the greyhounds.

No matter whether such programs are neces-

Baseball coach aids SR win

DANVILLE — Football turned into a guessing game for the San Ramon Wolves Friday night and, with the help of spotter Rick Steen, SR were right just enough times to come from behind for a 14-13 win over previously unbeaten Granada High.

SR baseball coach Steen, charting Granada during the first half, determined that two Wolf plays had a chance of cracking the Mats "Gap-8" goal line defense. One of those, a pass to Charlie Brice slanting left out of the backfield with 5:30 left in the game allowed San Ramon to score its winning touchdown. "We were down there for about 14 plays and they guessed right 13 times," said San Ramon coach Lyle Setencich, when told that Granada had keyed for a pitchout to the right side on the play.

Although the Wolves had 17 first downs to the Mats' five and held the ball for 77 downs as opposed to 38 for Granada, the first half of the East Bay Athletic League opener belonged to the third-ranked Mats.

Vance Rushing, Granada's appropriately named and multi-faceted offensive threat, rolled up a season-high 173 yards in the contest, 160 coming in the first half, when the Mats scored all their points.

With a fruitless 44-yard burst already under his belt, Rushing found a hole outside right guard and sprinted 57 yards for the first score of the game. But, on the extra point try, Brent Dixon snapped low to holder Bill Parness and Bryan McSharry's hurried kick failed.

That hardly seemed to matter early in the second period as Granada sprinted 59 yards in two plays for its other touchdown. Kurt Honodel went 38 yards on a delayed counter play to set up a 21-yard straight-ahead touchdown blast by Rushing. This time, McSharry booted the PAT without a hitch.

Times SPORTS

Dave Weber, Editor

"They beat the hell out of us physically in the first half," Setencich admitted after the game. But, despite injuries that put starting quarterback Guy Houston and eight other players on the bench from the outset, Setencich managed to motivate the Wolves for the second half. "I told them to have some courage," he said. "If you don't have it, you can't do anything. We had no personality in the first half, but we added a little bit of character in the second."

Even so, it took an isolated break to put the Wolves in a position to score. They made the break themselves, however, as Bill Shewry blocked Rushing's punt and recovered at the Granada 35.

Quarterback Troy Thomas, whose passing performance earned him a chance to contest Houston and part-time wide receiver Jon Arnaudon for the regular starting spot, kept twice for 19 yards before handing to Brice, who rolled over the goal line from six yards out.

Rowdy Corrick booted both extra points for San Ramon.

While Thomas, a 5-10 sophomore, had to share the stage with Rushing, he was nearly as impressive, completing 14 of 16 passes for 120 yards. Brice led SR in rushing with 77 yards on 15 packs while Granada managed just one yard passing, that on a screen from Bill Parness to Honodel.

MV defeats Dons in thriller, 13-12

Monte Vista High School is for real.

Amador Valley High's football team found that out Friday night on the Don field when the visitors took a exciting 13-12 win in a mistakes-plagued contest.

The Dons fumbled the pigskin six times and were penalized 95 yards.

But the Mustangs earned the win. The Alamo school got a fine effort from Craig Robinson, who scored both MV touchdowns.

The Mustangs, now 1-0 in East Bay Athletic League action and 3-0-1 for the season, took advantage of a fumble by Don quarterback Pat Inglesby and scored its first touchdown late in the first quarter. It took the Mustangs nine plays to drive 46 yards for the initial score, Robinson driving over from the five.

Amador came back with a touchdown of its own in the second period. Rick Garcia ran a punt back to the Stang 19. A penalty helped put the Dons in scoring position. Rob Flores, who ran for 179 yards and two touchdowns, scored from the three.

Monte Vista scored again in the third period when Robinson went over from the two. A 12-yard pass from quarterback Bart Jones to tight end Tom Olsen set up the score.

Flores added the second Amador Valley touchdown on a 62-yard run around end. However, the Dons' two-point conversion attempt failed and the Mustangs kept their unbeaten season intact.

West's catch beats Falcons

Livermore High School used the "long bomb," a play seldom used by the Cowboys this season, to come from behind and defeat an inspired Foothill High School team, 21-12 in the East Bay Athletic League opener for both football teams Friday night at the winners' stadium.

The key play for the Pokes (now 3-1 overall) came when quarterback Rick Gildea, on a first and 10 on the Livermore 40 midway through the final quarter, hurled a long pass down the sidelines to end Dave West. West had a step on the Foothill defender after pulling in the pass and raced down the sidelines for the score to give the Pokes a 14-12 advantage.

"I just got a step on the defender on the outside and caught the pass," a happy West said in the jubilant Cowboy dressing room after the contest.

The 160 pound senior's touchdown came on the heels of a 70-yard, 12-play touchdown drive by the Falcons which gave them a brief 12-7 lead. Flanker Jeff Johnstone caught a 13-yard pass over the middle from quarterback Kevin Henderson for the score. Johnstone was especially impressive in the drive, catching the last three passes for 28 yards total.

A 15-yard pass to Chas Dean brought the ball down to the Cowboy 32 yard line, setting up Johnstone's pass catches.

Foothill led 6-0 at halftime on a 43-yard interception return by Brad Colvin for a score with 1:28 left in the first quarter. Colvin reached in front of several Livermore receivers and broke in for the score easily.

Foothill threatened to put the game away on the opening kickoff of the second half when running back Russ Humphries rambled down the sidelines to the Cowboy five before being run out of bounds.

Then the Livermore defense stiffened and a Falcon field goal attempt failed.

Livermore then drove 80 yards in 14 plays to tie the score. Ace running back Pat Powles busted over from the two for the touchdown. Charlie Bockover kicked the extra point to give the Pokes a 7-6 lead.

Powles was the hero of a late fourth quarter touchdown drive by the Pokes for an insurance touchdown. The 147 pound running back carried the ball six times for 38 yards in the drive. Gildea ran 16 yards for the final touchdown. The Pokes quarterback also had a 10-yard run on a critical third-down play to keep the drive alive.

Powles led the games' rushers with 134 yards in 20 carries and Gildea added 46.

Cowboy head coach Ron Berg praised Powles' performance.

"He's just a strong, gutty runner who runs really hard," Berg said as he was being conglated by well-wishers. "He's just really tough."

Powles had praise for the Livermore offensive line in the lockerroom.

"In the first half we didn't play really that well," he admitted. "However, the second half saw us really open up. The offensive line opened some real holes."

Gaels outlast stubborn Cal

Just when everyone expects California High to lay down and die, the Grizzlies seem to bounce from nowhere and put up a fight.

Dublin High was painfully aware of that Friday night. Although piling up an offensive yardage advantage of 523 to 180, the Gaels had to fight down to the last quarter to register a 41-20 win in the EBAL opener for both teams in Dublin.

The Grizzlies, brushed off as also-rans before the season even began, picked up instant fame in their first EBAL contest ever when Chris Miller returned the opening kickoff 101 yards for a 6-0 Cal lead, much to the delight of a healthy Cal student body on hand.

Glory was short-lived, however. On Dublin's first play from scrimmage after the ensuing kickoff, Chuck Gangnus rambled 62 yards off-tackle to tie the game at 6-6. Only 40 seconds had elapsed into the game.

It wasn't long before the Gaels scored again, going 43 yards in eight plays with Chuck Gangnus. Gangnus carried the ball in from the 14-yard line with 6:50 left in the first quarter. Sean Mays' kick made it 13-7.

Gangnus, who picked up 89 yards in the first quarter and finished with 182, obligingly let Jim Boulware take over the reins. With 3:30 to go in the initial quarter Boulware broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage and went untouched for 92 yards into the endzone and a 20-6 Dublin lead. Boulware, up to that point, carried the ball only two times for six yards.

When Cal fumbled away good field position at the Dublin 38, the Gaels mounted a sustained drive for yet another score. This time it was Gangnus who took the ball in from the 14-yard line with 5:29 to go in the half.

The Grizzlies were fortunate to escape the first half with another TD.

Saved by two consecutive offside penalties against the Gaels, Tom Woodmansee sneaked the ball across the goal from the one-yard line on the last play of the first half, making it 28-12.

Dublin's offensive machine stymied in the third quarter, and the Bears capitalized. Facing a third down and 10 from the Dublin 15-yard line, Woodmansee found Chuck Cary open on the left sideline and Cary took it in for the score. When Jim Lucas grabbed Woodmansee's pass for the two-point conversion, Cal was within striking distance at 28-20.

The Gaels, seeing their lives and reputations on the line, stopped passing the ball and stayed on the ground, chewing up precious time. The strategy worked, as Mays carried five yards for one touchdown, while Boulware pocketed another touchdown run with a 70-yard jaunt, giving the Gaels a 41-20 lead with 3:15 to go in the game. The two-time Flecto award winner amassed 243 yards on the night of 18 carries.

"We didn't come here to lose the game," said Cal coach Mike McGinnis. "The kids were really up, they went out and played a good game. This season isn't going to be a cakewalk."

McGinnis pointed out the play of tackle Tracy Nodlinski as a key to their success. Nodlinski also handles the Grizzlies' kicking and punting.

Bay Area round-up

Walker star as Bears romp

BERKELEY, Calif. — Wesley Walker, California's game-breaking flanker, caught eight passes for a school record 289 yards Saturday, scoring three touchdowns in the Bears' 43-16 football victory over San Jose State.

The speedy receiver, also a trackman who has run 100 meters in 10.1 seconds, scored twice on the only passes thrown by second string quarterback Fred Besana. The first play covered 75 yards, breaking a 3-3 in the second period when Besana relieved starter Joe Roth for two plays, and the second came on a 48-yard play in the final minutes of the game.

Walker scored on a 57-yard pass from Roth in the third period, giving Cal a 26-3 lead which lasted only a few minutes since Bob Triplett promptly returned a kickoff 100 yards for San Jose's first touchdown. A 43-yard pass reception by Walker set up a first-period field goal and he ran 35 yards on a double reverse late in the first half to set up Oliver Hillman's short touchdown run.

Cards upset

WEST POINT, N.Y. — Leamon Hall recovered

from an ice-cold start, rallied Army to three touchdowns in the final 20 minutes and threw a two-point conversion pass to Clennie Brundidge with 1:18 left that gave the underdog Cadets a 21-20 college football victory over Stanford Saturday.

Brundidge, the nation's leading receiver, outfoiled Rich Waters for the ball just inside the goal line after Hall capped an 82-yard drive with a one-yard touchdown sneak.

Hall, who entered the game as the nation's top passer with 21 completions per game, completed only three of his first 19 attempts and misfired on 15 in a row until he got hot with 4:52 left in the third period and Army trailing 20-0.

He completed four passes for 67 yards on an 80-yard march capped by freshman Jon Dwyer's four-yard scoring run and passed 11 yards to Tom Kuchar with 8 1/2 minutes left to finish off another 80-yard strike.

Daley stars

Arlene Daley ran a 12:02.8 for first place to lead her Granada High School teammates to a first place finish in the girls' division of the College Park

Cross-Country Relays yesterday.

The Mats had 34 points to 66 for runner-up Pleasant Hill. The mats' boys varsity finished fifth in the competition.

Tenace hero

OAKLAND — Gene Tenace's run-scoring single with the bases loaded in the 14th inning gave the Oakland A's a 9-8 victory over the California Angels Saturday.

Rollie Fingers was the winning pitcher. He blanked the Angels over the final two innings to pick up his 13th victory of the season.

SF fails

HOUSTON — J.R. Richard won his 20th game of the season with a four-hitter and also slammed a two-run homer as the Houston Astros blasted the San Francisco Giants 10-1 Saturday.

Gaels fall

HAYWARD — Reserve quarterback Kevin Mouser came off the bench to complete six of eight passes for 110 yards, throw for one touchdown and run for another Saturday to lead Hayward State's Pioneers to a 30-3 football victory over St. Mary's Gaels.

GS loses

SEATTLE — The Los Angeles Lakers held off the Golden State Warriors, 108-102 in an exhibition National Basketball Association game here last night.

Baja California governor asks aid

Hurricane death toll climbing in La Paz

LA PAZ, Mexico (AP) — The governor of hurricane-stricken Baja California Sur requested aid from the United States Saturday, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally's office reported.

Gov. Cesar - Angel Mendoza Aramburo asked for food, clothing and medicine, particularly antibiotics, to be flown to La Paz, where a dam cracked from the force of Hurricane Liza, said Dymally spokesman Bob Holmes.

He said the request was made through the Commission of the Californias to Dymally, the commission chairman, who telephoned the White House.

Dymally met earlier in the day in Washington with President Ford, who asked him to visit La Paz next Tuesday to survey the damage, Holmes said.

He said the lieutenant governor would contact Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. in Los Angeles to see whether California would launch a separate effort to aid the disaster area.

Rescue teams dug through "an enormous blanket of mud" in this Baja California city Saturday, unearthing and burying or reburying the bodies of Hurricane Liza's victims.

Officials said at least 630, and perhaps as many as 1,000 persons were killed by the hurricane, which roared across the southern Baja peninsula Friday with winds up to 130 miles an hour and then struck the Mexico coast across the Sea of Cortez.

Some 14,000 persons were reported injured or bruised and 70,000 were left homeless.

The dwindling storm, which had meandered offshore in the Pacific for three days before suddenly cutting its deadly swath across the peninsula, passed over the northern Sierra Madre Mountains Saturday and entered the United States at El Paso, Tex. It was moving northeastward through eastern New Mexico and western Texas.

La Paz, a city of 85,000, suffered the worst devastation. The storm cracked a 30-foot-high earthen dam, sending a huge wall of water and mud down on a crowded shantytown, washing away scores of thatched-roof shacks. The city's streets Saturday were littered with debris and hundreds of wrecked automobiles, many buried roof deep in mud.

Rogelio Felix, spokesman for the local governor's office, said "an enormous blanket of mud" covered the area below the dam. "It's frightening," he said. Mexican troops were digging for bodies, then burying them in mass graves or burning them to prevent epidemics.

One out of five houses in the city were destroyed, the army said.

Rescue officials appealed for food, clothing and medicine, and Mexican President Luis Echeverria, who toured the area Friday night, ordered an emergency airlift of supplies from the mainland. But continued bad weather kept many of the planes grounded.

Officials said communications were cut off to 13 smaller communities south of La Paz. The road leading to Cabo San Lucas, on the southern tip of the peninsula, was blocked. The highway that links La Paz with the border cities of Tijuana and Mexicali, 700 miles to the north, was reported badly damaged in four locations.

A dozen communities in the mainland states of Sonora and Sinaloa suffered heavy damage.

Officials reported that at least 75 boats, mostly small craft and including nine yachts owned by Americans, were either sunk or grounded by the storm. At least four fishermen were listed as missing.

Most of the stricken towns were left without drinking water and electricity and had only erratic communications. Engineers estimated it would take at least eight days to repair downed power lines in La Paz and completely restore electricity and other services.

A small child weeps outside the wreckage of her home in the town of La Paz in Baja California, Mexico, where Hurricane Liza killed more than 600 people when it slammed into the city. Mud has filled the house in the photograph up to the first floor window level. Many victims are still believed to be buried in the mud which swept through the southern part of town when a dam burst.

Six workmen killed

Huge crane collapses at Carlsbad

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Six workmen on a giant crane were killed Saturday when it collapsed, narrowly missing 90 others.

"Everybody ran like hell," one of them said later. It took almost four hours to remove the last of the six bodies from the steel wreckage.

The accident took place at the Encina oil-burning plant of San Diego Gas Electric Co., where a $170-million generating unit is being built.

Company spokesmen refused to allow reporters near the jumbled steel, and all who saw the accident were sent home immediately.

Although two San Diego County coroners' deputies investigated, neither would talk with reporters. Identification of the dead men was described as "delayed."

The dead included four electricians and two ironworkers. Except for a man crushed in the cab below, they were high on the red, white and yellow crane and on a balancing arm which extends horizontally to the opposite side of a heavier lifting arm.

A third of the weights needed to balance the opposite arms had been placed in the balancer, and spokesmen said the workmen were trying to raise the other extension which does the actual lifting of heavy construction material.

"The vertical piece crumbled without any warning, apparently," a spokesman for the utility said. The crane buckled in four sections, throwing one man 100 feet away from the crane's base and the others onto the concrete foundation with its protruding reinforcement rods.

The wife of one of the workmen who escaped said later he called it "indescribable — just awful. Everybody ran like hell."

One man was treated at the scene for shock and released, another was treated for minor scrapes.

The accident was expected to delay the construction for weeks, but not work on the unit's controversial smokestack. A seven-day, two-shift effort has been under way on the addition to three adjoining power units.

An environmental group called Carlsbad Community Cause has sought an injunction to stop it, but 10 days ago California's 4th District Court of Appeal sustained the decision of Superior Court Judge Paul Eugene Overton in nearby Vista denying the injunction.

At that time, the appeals court said work on the power plant was too far along.

A decision may be made soon to appeal now to the California Supreme Court to stop the project, a spokesman for the group said.

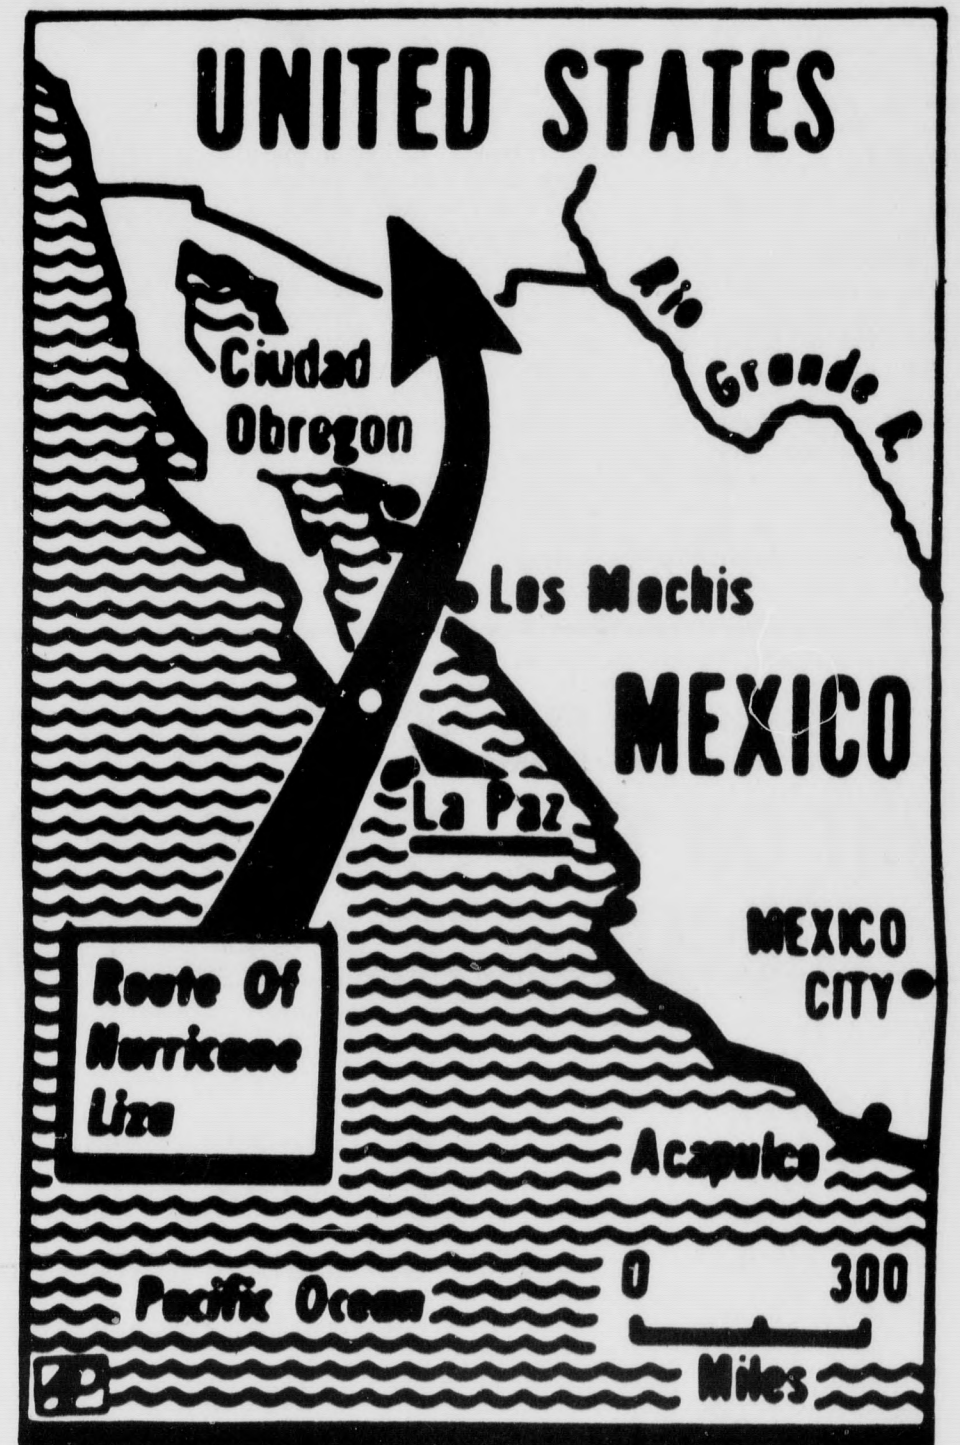

Industrial investigators for the state and federal governments have notified the utility of inspection plans.

The unit, when completed in 1979, will generate 292 megawatts of power. San Diego Gas & Electric operates two other fossil-fuel plants in San Diego and another in Chula Vista south of San Diego and is co-owner with Southern California Edison Co. of the San Onofre nuclear power plant 25 miles north of the Carlsbad plant which sits on old U.S. 101, now Carlsbad Boulevard, overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

A huge crane collapsed at Carlsbad, Calif., Saturday and killed six workers. The 190-foot crane lies broken (above) on the foundation of Encina power plant which is under construction north of San Diego.

Smog 'epidemic' hurting crops

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Smog damage is spreading among San Joaquin Valley crops and Sierra Nevada pine trees, state Air Resources Board Chairman Tom Quinn said Friday.

California's top anti-smog official said an air pollution "epidemic" will cause about $32 million in damage to valley crops this year and will damage thousands of acres of trees.

Quinn said federal, state and local anti-smog agencies haven't figured out yet whether the smog comes from from cities in the valley or is being blown in from the San Francisco area.

The first visible evidence of damage to crops in the south valley was reported this August by state agriculture officials, who estimated last year's loss in cotton, grapes and alfalfa at $26.5 million.

Quinn said the ARB staff has found damage from oxidants — Los Angeles-type, automobile-caused smog — and sulfur dioxide on at least 43 crops grown in the valley, notably cotton, grapes, alfalfa and beans.

Sales of the 43 crops last year totaled $3.2 billion, Quinn said.

Smog damage on Sierra pines has been noted in past years, but is worse than ever this year, Quinn said.

He said smog-diseased pine trees have been found in widespread areas of the Sequoia, Los Padres and Sierra national forests and in Sequoia and Kings Canyon national parks.

Nearly every tree at the entrance of Sequoia National Park is damaged, and a U.S. Forest survey found that tens of thousands of acres in the Sierra Nevada were affected, Quinn said.

"The only positive sign is our belief that the smog disease is still in its early stages and probably can be cured if action is taken quickly to reduce pollution levels," he said.

The ARB will hold a hearing on smog damage to crops Monday in Fresno.

THE DECLINE OF THE POUND

The decline of the Pound is illustrated on this chart which shows the British pound slipping beginning in 1931, when it was devalued from $5 to $4.8675. It shot up to $5.065 in 1933 but through the years has dropped. The closing figure Friday was $1.6670.

Hollywood heeds call of the West

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — For a while there, it looked as though the Western had gone thataway. But now there are some indications it's coming thisaway.

On TV, where once the Western roamed unchecked, it had nearly become an endangered species. But like the bison, there are signs of a comeback.

"It's still too early to tell for sure, but this coming TV season has one new Western series plus a sprinkling of sagebrush specials on the schedule. And there are eight or nine Western pilots making the rounds, ready to gallop on should a trend develop.

On the big movie screen, the Western had become virtually non-existent. But now there are a couple of them — "The Shootist" and "The Return of a Man Called Horse" — which have opened to generally fine reviews.

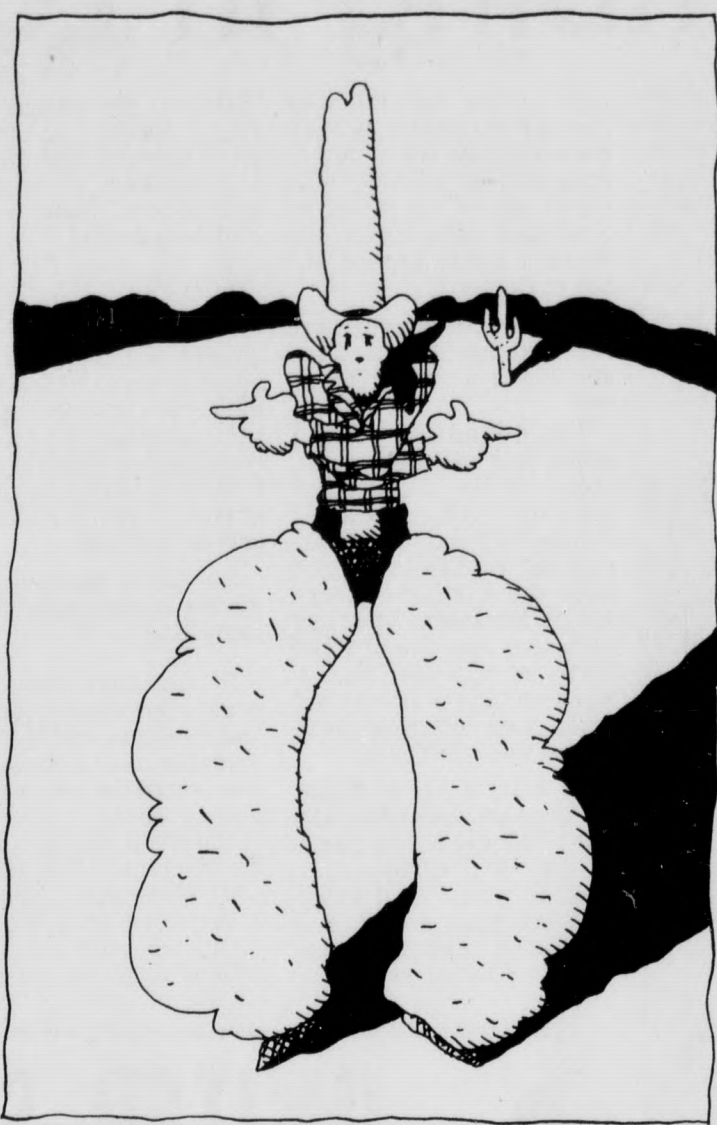

If the public goes to see them in sufficient numbers, you can be positive that more will follow.

From the start of TV, cowboys, Indians and all that were all over the dial. One of the earliest TV successes was Hopalong Cassidy and the trend continued with a long run of cowboy hits — The Virginian, Have Gun Will Travel, Bonanza, The Rifleman and on and on and on.

Then, about five years ago, the trend began to slacken. Finally, with the demise of Bonanza, it petered out completely. Last year, there was no Western at all, unless you consider Little House On the Prairie.

What happened to kill the genre off? Theories vary.

"It's simple to explain," says producer David Gerber, who is the man in charge of NBC's new entry, Quest. "It was just a case of oversaturation. At its height, there were damn near 25 Westerns on TV at one time. That was just too many."

But Gerber thinks there may be another reason behind the fact that the Westerns galloped off into the TV sunset, a reason based on our national psyche.

"The country," he says, "turned its back on the 'macho' image — John Wayne in the white hat. A cynicism built up about our national heritage. Maybe the Viet Nam war had something to do with it. All I know is that young people — those between 18 and 39 — reacted violently against Westerns, considering them unbelievable fables.

"But now we seem to be going back again. Maybe the Bicentennial has had something to do with it. We're once again examining our heritage. But this time, we're doing it with an honest eye."

Another explanation for the anti-Western period is advanced by Michael Eisner, ABC's senior vice-president for prime time production and development. He thinks it was based on sociological reasons.

"What killed the Western off," Eisner says, "was the huge migration of people from rural to urban areas. It was the greatest migration in our history, greater even than that from Europe to America. The result was that a different generation of Americans grew up, and Westerns were simply not relevant to their lives."

Old-time historians of the entertainment business pooh-pooh all those theories, and claim the whole thing is and always has been a cyclical affair. Their position is that, in movies, there have been Western cycles before and non-Western cycles before, and there always will be.

Whatever the reason, there do seem to be signs the trend is reversing itself. Gerber's Quest series will be a regular on NBC this fall. It is almost an old-fashioned Western — cowboys and Indians — but Gerber says it will be almost modern in concept.

Gerber is the man who created Police Story, and he says its success was due largely to its "authentic ring."

"I'm trying to give Quest that same authentic ring," he says. "It's a Police Story set in the old West. We're relying heavily on research and everything will be totally authentic."

Eisner's ABC network will have two big Western shows this season. Around Christmas, there will be a special, Young Pioneers, a continuation of a similar one-shot aired last year. And, on a larger scale, there will be a six-hour — three two-hour segments — show called How the West Was Won, which only borrows the title of that famous movie. One reason why Westerns may not make it all the way back is because of TV economics. Gerber says in the old days they were cheap to make because there were plenty of horses, wagons, wranglers and all the trappings. But, today, those items are scarce on the Hollywood market-place.

"The network recognizes," he says, "that this show will be more expensive than an ordinary show, and they're giving us an increased fee. But, on the other hand, Westerns are still very popular overseas, so we should do well selling the series abroad."

There is another reason why TV Westerns virtually disappeared — the Family Hour concept.

That attempted to limit violence during the hours when, theoretically, children might be watching. Westerns were traditionally violent, although Bonanza and Gunsmoke managed to circumvent that by leaning on character studies. Now, though, it appears as if everything is ready for a Western renaissance—

It all depends on you, the audience. If Quest and How the West Was Won and "The Shootist" and "The Return of a Man Called Horse" do well, the stampede is on.

NEWS VISUALS

"JUST AN HONEST ANSWER" is Lillian Carter's reaction to her son's controversial comments on sex to a magazine interviewer. "In a way I was surprised, but it didn't shock me."

CANADIAN Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau hopes to halt the steep decline of his Liberal party in public opinion polls with "major surgery" on his cabinet. The shakeup brought in seven new members, including two additional women and a native Indian.

WHAT AGE is Wendy Butler? The space age, obviously. The first-grader missing numerous front teeth is from Austintown, Ohio.

NO JOKE to himself or to Democratic party strategists, Eugene McCarthy's independent presidential candidacy is seen as a possible serious threat to Jimmy Carter. McCarthy could attract sufficient numbers to cut deeply into the Carter vote in some key states.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

VEAL, CALF
AND BEEF . . .

WHAT ARE
THEIR
DIFFERENCES?

These three names are basic official generic terms clearly defined by the USDA Grading Service. Although all bovine species fall into the three categories, there are several sub-categories of product, most of which are not defined by any official service. As a result, there is some confusion because of the various names in use. Names may vary from store to store — area to area. Most of us are familiar with veal . . . the tender meat that is such a delicacy. It has little fat and requires gentle cooking.

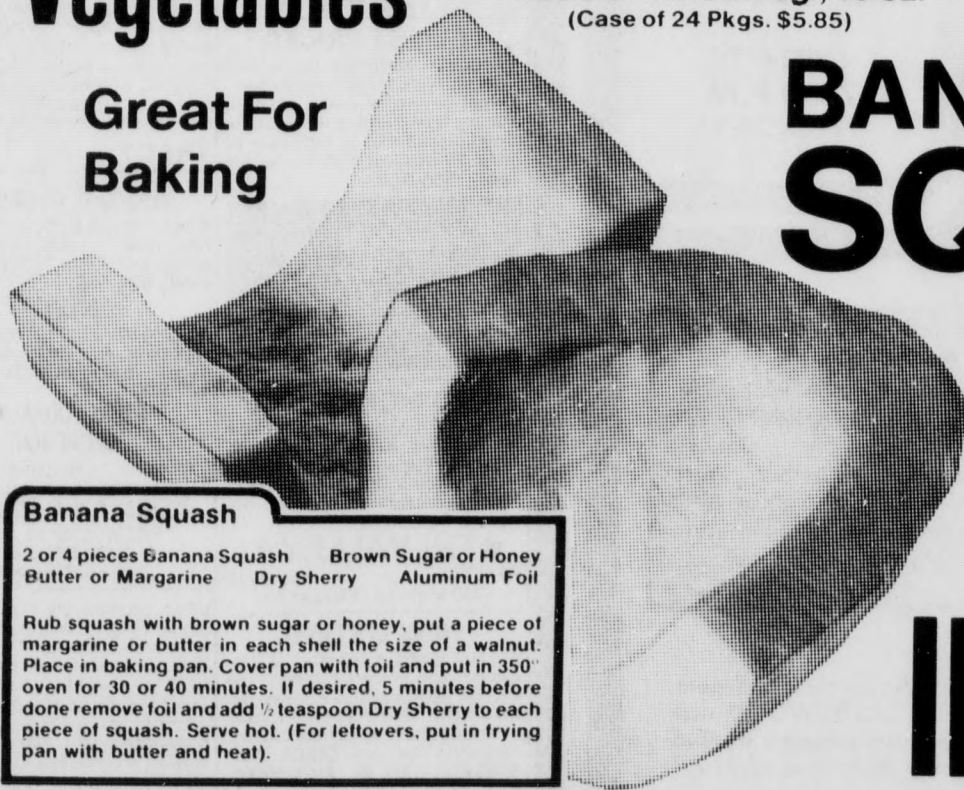

"Calf" is from young cattle, too old to be classified as veal but younger than the widely available mature beef. Calf is also sold under the name "Baby Beef" but according to USDA standards, it is properly referred to as "Calf." The primary guide for telling the difference between calf, veal and mature beef is by comparing the color of the lean meat. As noted by the USDA, calf is typically "grayish red" in color but may vary to "moderately red" in more mature calves. This contrasts with the bright cherry red of mature beef and the "grayish pink" of veal. The cuts are smaller than beef but somewhat larger than veal, have some marbling and a thin flaky layer of white fat on some cuts. (In some areas, "light beef" is sold — it's somewhat heavier than calf but lighter than mature beef.)

Cooking methods are a little different for calf (or Baby Beef). This week we have a free leaflet for you on cooking methods for this meat. Come and get your free copy at your nearest Safeway. No purchase required.
